

A system and method for customized information design, archiving and presentation. More specifically, a context-sensitive retrieval system and method are described that retrieve content and action relevant to the information that the user has requested and present the additional content and action on a real-time basis to the user, or to the user and others, substantially simultaneously with the arrival of the originally requested information.

5